HEAD OFF THE PAIN OF MIGRAINES

First-Ever Non-Prescription Nasal Spray Offers Immediate Relief

November 8, 2007, Newtown, CT - There are nearly 28 million headache sufferers in the United States and one in every four U.S. households has a migraine sufferer. However, there is good news for chronic sufferers in the form of a new nasal spray that works quickly and effectively. Sinol Nasal Spray for Headaches is the first-of-its-kind, non-prescription nasal spray made from a natural ingredient found in Cayenne pepper called Capsaicin. Capsaicin is clinically proven to reduce pain and swelling and quickly relieves migraines and cluster headaches.

Recently, a group of researchers from Harvard Medical School have concluded that natural Capsaicin is an effective ingredient for relieving all types of pain, including the pain associated with headaches. Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City conducted research on Capsaicin in nasal spray form and concluded that intranasal medications for the treatment of headaches are significantly more effective than by digestive means because they reduce the swelling of blood vessels in the brain that are the direct cause of most headaches.

Paul Carpenter, who invented Sinol discovered Capsaicin when his cousin told him their grandfather used Cayenne pepper on top of a shot of bourbon to relive his migraines. After a few years of research and working with an FDA-licensed laboratory, the perfect formula was developed.

“It took many formulations to create what we have today,” Carpenter states. “Now, a group of physicians and pharmacists are using Sinol in private practice across the country with outstanding results.”

Sinol USA, Inc. is changing the way consumers think about healthcare and their well-being. Sinol is a high growth, “all-natural” and over-the-counter healthcare company engaged in the development and marketing of products that utilize holistic methods to relieve chronic healthcare problems.
